DAILY LETTER

From

SANTA CLAUS

North Pole,
December 10 1920.

Mr. Bert J. Steelman,
Hammond, Indiana.
Hello Bert:

The fact that you are getting a little older each year and becoming slightly bald doesn't mean I've forgotten you by any means. As a matter of fact, I'm up in years myself, my hair is white and I'm a bit stout, but nevertheless us old fellows can prance some. Anyway, I never forget an old friend, especially if he was good when he was a boy.

Say, Bert, speaking of prancing, my reindeers are just more than prancing; they're dead anxious to start for Hammond with this load of jewelry, musical instruments, appliances, clothing, bicycles, automobiles, candy, automobile tires, and a lot of savings account books.

The jewelry I have this year runs from baby rings, wrist watches, lavallieres, ivory sets, up to shelf and hall clocks; and really, Bert, it's classy stuff, too. Well, judge for yourself, I got the goods from Sam Silver, at 177 State street, right in Hammond. The candy, too, comes from the Hammond Candy Co., at 166 State street and 575 Hohman street. They've got all kinds of fresh chocolates, nut meats, bon bons, taffy, etc., and they make it themselves; so you know it will be good. Incidentally, I'll leave some at your home—for the youngsters.

Oh, yes, I have added two more Santa Claus distributing stations—the Jackson Auto Sales and Straube Piano Co., who will also help me with the presents Christmas Eve.

I am now loading up the second section of the great Reindeer Special, which will carry eighteen large sleds. The first section will contain candy, nuts, chewing gum, etc. The second section will carry jewelry. Expect to have this section completed by tomorrow.

Now be sure and listen for three distinct knocks Christmas Eve. When you hear that, you'll know it's me.

Sincerely,

SANTA CLAUS.

P. S.—Say, Bert, I could tell you what Mrs. Steelman ordered for you, but guess I won't. Candy Kisses for the kids tomorrow at the Weserveu Ladies' Shop—see their announcement.

Automatic Tension Adjuster

Proper Belt Tension All the Time

Federal engineers know belt drive, and the Federal drive caused them to adopt it after exhaustive tests with gear chains, etc. They know, too, a disadvantage which has kept other manufacturers from using it for years—slippage and loss of power. But with characteristic thoroughness, they have eliminated completely this latter source of trouble. The tension adjuster of the Federal automatically maintains proper belt tension by a simple spring idler pulley operating against the slack side of the belt. Thus, the specially selected leather belt delivers its power smoothly and at highest efficiency all the time.
